

Brand & Design Language

The house style for both products — warm, editorial, print-magazine calm rather than SaaS dashboard. Serif heads, clean sans body, muted neutrals, crimson as spice.

03 Dark mode

Same tokens, values flipped to a warm near-black. Every utility keeps working because only the token values change.

PREMIUM LANGUAGE CENTRE

Warm near-black, calm at night.

Body text stays legible on the darkened cream base, with crimson lifted to #D95D66 so the accent still reads.

04 Shape & spacing

Card radius

0.625rem (~10px) — softer than default for the editorial feel. Small elements use rounded-md.

Hairline borders

Thin, low-contrast border-warm lines. Whitespace over borders; shadows only on modals & popovers.

Minimal shadow

Reserved for raised surfaces — modals and popovers — never on flat cards or rows.

05 The house style

- 01 Sentence case everywhere

Except intentional small-caps labels. No Title Case headings.
- 02 Small-caps labels

10–11px, medium, uppercase, tracking 0.18–0.22em, in ink-muted.
- 03 Numbered section markers

Mono 01, 02 with letter-spacing; active nav underlined/tinted crimson.
- 04 Crimson is a spice, not a base

Reserved for active state, primary action, alert. Never large crimson fills.
- 05 Mobile-first

Most traffic is mobile ads; layouts collapse to one column, sidebar becomes a drawer.
- 06 Tabular numerals

Any figure that updates uses mono/tabular so counters never shift width.
- 07 Whitespace over borders

Generous spacing and hairlines carry structure; minimise shadows.
- 08 Editorial restraint

Serif heads + clean sans body, warm neutrals, muted status over bright.

DESIGN NORTH STAR

Match the sibling PECSB apps exactly, so every product reads as one family — warm, editorial, print-magazine calm rather than “SaaS dashboard.”
